PREFACE

This directory is the product of years of statistical research by the author. It is not drawn from "official" records, as no single document contains this information. Incomplete data on aircraft names and serial numbers is scattered through unit records, missing air crew reports, etc. but is not consolidated in any archive. Nor does this directory purport to be all inclusive. It does however, list over 8,200 Boeing B-17s from the World War II era on which some sort of name identification was obtained, showing name and where available, group, squadron and serial number.

If this directory of B-17s proves useful to researchers and historians there will be subsequent volumes containing similar listings for other aircraft that were the primary combat types of World War II.

PHOTO CREDIT

All photos in this volume are from the Forman collection, the Lambert collection, or the Eighth Air Force Historical Society. The cover photo of SENTIMENTAL JOURNEY is used courtesy of the Confederate Air Force, Inc. The aircraft is operated by the Arizona Wing located at Mesa, AZ. Photographer Bill Crump captured this head-on shot in 1983. This B-17G carries the markings of the 457th Bomb Group.

MAD MONEY II (shown on the rear cover) is a Flying Fortress of the 547th Squadron, 384th Bomb Group and the photo is provided by the Eighth Air Force Historical Society.

INTRODUCTION

This list is called a “consolidation listing”; an unusual term but accurately descriptive. This compilation is not the result of one man’s work but of several. What I did was to consolidate their collective but independent efforts.

Paul M. Andrews and William H. Adams have led the way for years putting together the Eighth Air Force Historical Society’s “Bits & Pieces” lists of B-17s and B-24s which get bigger and more accurate every time they are re-issued. Rhodes F. Arnold in his book The B-24/PB4Y in Combat provided a marvelous data list for B-24s. William H. Greenhalgh and Alwyn Lloyd at different times provided B-24 lists to the Journal of the American Aviation Historical Society. I had developed considerable lists on my own for both B-17s and B-24s, with great help on the B-24 list from John R. Beitling, “Mr. B-24”, whose knowledge and records are fantastic. Data on B-17s of the Fifteenth Air Force was provided by Richard E. Drain. All of their inputs, and help from many others, made this venture feasible.

Each of these sources was most helpful. Yet when someone called on the phone with a question, it was a scramble to know which list to look at for an answer, and one might have to wade through all of them before finding it. I thought, “Wouldn’t it be nice to have a single bit list containing all of this data so I’d only have to look just one place to see if there’s an answer.” I tried to create such a list by consolidating the other men’s lists first with each other’s and then with my own file.

Months of effort followed, eliminating errors and digging out duplications. Also there were decisions on how many variations to show where old crewmen’s memories disagreed on spelling and punctuation of names, accuracy of numbers, etc.

Finally, on May 19, 1993 the resulting consolidation list was sent to all the above mentioned men asking for their comments, and if they had any objection to my using it as a reference or sharing it with some other serious aviation history buffs. There were no negative comments, and a couple of them even expressed gratefulness for my trying something new.

Since then, the lists have been seen by knowledgeable people and a lot of correcting and improving has taken place. In fact this is actually the fifth generation of the list. I continue updating and correcting it almost daily, but it is such a big job that reprinting just isn’t a very frequent probability.

What motivates one to get involved in a venture like this?

As a new hobby, started in 1969, I set an objective to get a picture of every make and model of airplane ever built, anywhere in the world, either commercial or military. I had no idea how many this might be, but after twenty-five years, in 1994, I estimated the collection contained some 750,000 pictures of 35,000 different makes and models.

While building this collection, there were two categories which got thrown into boxes rather than getting sorted out at the time. Maybe later. The two categories were home built aircraft and military nose art. On a rainy day I did sort out the nose art by type of plane. There were 1,300 from B-24s and 700 from B-17s. Today there are 3,100 from B-24s and 1,800 from B-17s, with lesser numbers from most other key type WW II combat planes.

The assembling of data lists showing name, group, squadron and serial number of planes already pictured in my nose art collection was a real challenge, and most fascinating. Soon there was also a push in the direction of getting the same data for planes known to have been named but not yet pictured in my collection. My own inquisitiveness regarding this resulted in the list before you now.

The nose art aspect of my hobby continues to intrigue me. I believe that nose art in WW II was a very unique piece of Americana. When I pass on, I want to leave behind me, to some institution, a big enough collection of nose art that future generations can look at it and know that art form. Every day veterans are passing on, and widows and children are tossing out one of a kind nose art pictures, unaware of their uniqueness and significance; thus my effort to get them into my collection while the vets are still around. I think they might be glad to see their nose art pictures preserved for posterity.

Some tell me it’s a shame not to also get data on unnamed planes. Maybe so, but to me when someone bestowed a name to an aircraft, they also gave it a personality of sorts, which made it quite unique and special, whereas a plane with only a number is just that.

As you can tell from this explanation, I better be better at researching than I am at writing. But the creation of this list has been helpful to me and I hope it will be useful to others. If not useful, at least it may be entertaining as you look at some of the very creative and expressive names GIs coined during World War II.

Inquiries regarding listings and pictures in the directory or donations of nose art pictures are welcomed and can be addressed to:

SIROCCO, of the 97th Bomb Grp., Fifteenth Air Force, wore her name on both nose and tail. This B-17 also bears the marks of several battle damage patches and served a combat tour with the Eighth Air Force before coming to the Fifteenth.

ABOVE: LADY BE GOOD literally made it back to England on a wing and a prayer in March 1945. She belonged to the 749th Sq., 457th Bomb Grp. BELOW: B-17F, WABBIT TWACKS III, served with the 413th Sq., 96th Bomb Grp.

ABOVE: an unnamed B-17 of the 4th Emergency Rescue Sq., Seventh Ftr. Comd., on Iwo Jima late in the Pacific war. The dark shape under the fuselage is a motor launch, and a radar unit replaces the chin turret. BELOW: NINE O NINE was a 71 mission veteran with the 323rd Sq., 91st Bomb Grp., Eighth Air Force.

This unnamed B-17 of the 483rd Bomb Grp., Fifteenth AF brought her crew home despite the loss of several feet of right wing in a mid-air collision.

The City of Chicago was represented in the Eighth AF by this B-17 of the 366th Sq., 305th Bomb Grp. and crew.

A pair of 447th Bomb Grp, Eighth Air Force, B-17s, VIRGINIA LEE II (above) and LITTLE CHUM, in England in 1945.

Above and below are unnamed B-17s of the 97th Bomb Grp., Fifteenth Air Force. Note the unique, late model, radar dome in place of the belly turret on #297731.

Two views of incredible flak damage to an unnamed B-17 of the 815th Sq., 2nd Bomb Grp., Fifteenth Air Force. Aircraft commander, Capt. Walter L. Glass, Jr. brought her home despite the direct hit over Vienna. The radio operator and right waist gunner were mortally wounded.

These unnamed B-17s of the 11th Bomb Grp. (probably 26th Sq.) are shown on Guadalcanal in 1943, operating with the Thirteenth Air force. It seems likely that the crude wedding of the tail section (below) with the nose was part of a major job of cannibalization.

ABOVE: A much traveled B-17F of the 19th Bomb Grp., claimed 17 Japanese fighters, nine ships and seven Purple Hearts during some 96 missions.
BELOW: THE EAGLES WRATH was part of the 323rd Sq., 91st Bomb Grp. of the Eighth Air Force.

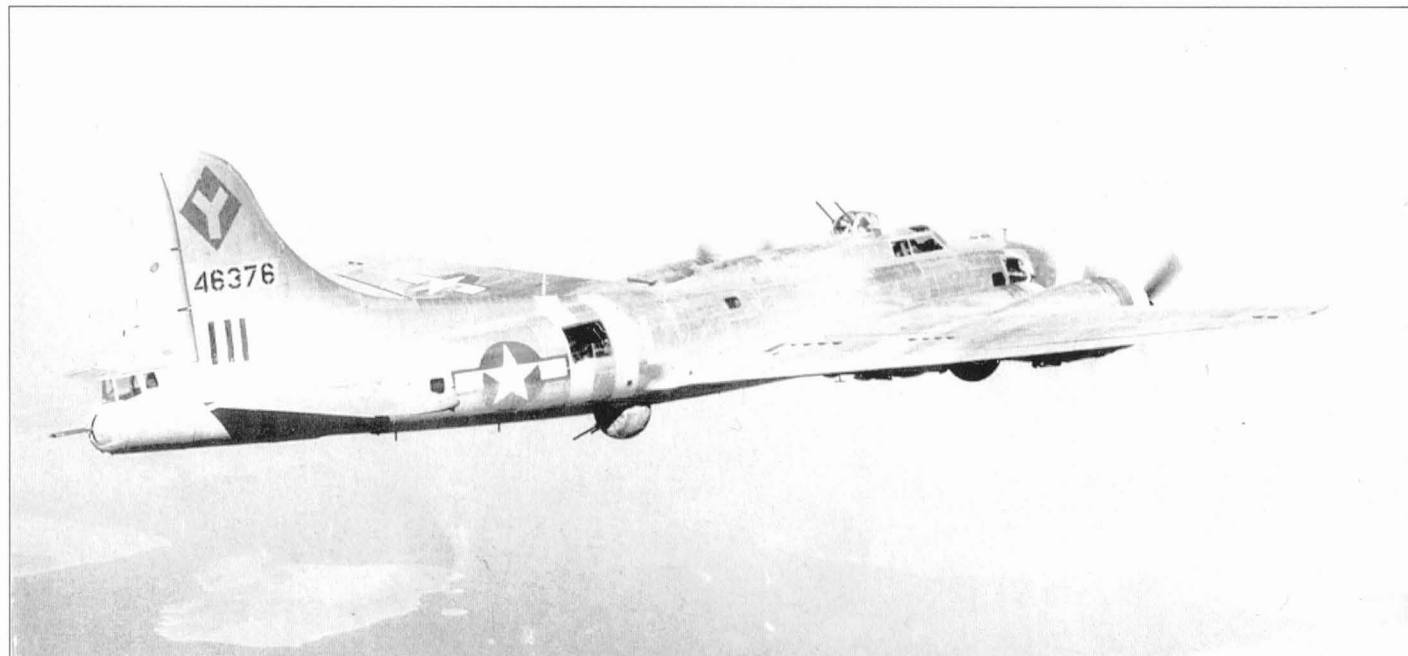

ABOVE: JUST PLAIN LONESOME belonged to the 323rd Sq., 91st Bomb Grp. BELOW: E-RAT-ICATOR, veteran of 125 missions, was the only original B-17 of the 452nd Bomb Grp. to survive. Here she is being loaded on Apr 15, 45 for the Eighth AF's first Napalm strike.

BELOW: MARGIE of the 840th Sq., 483rd Bomb Grp., Fifteenth Air Force was also forced to belly land after battle damage.

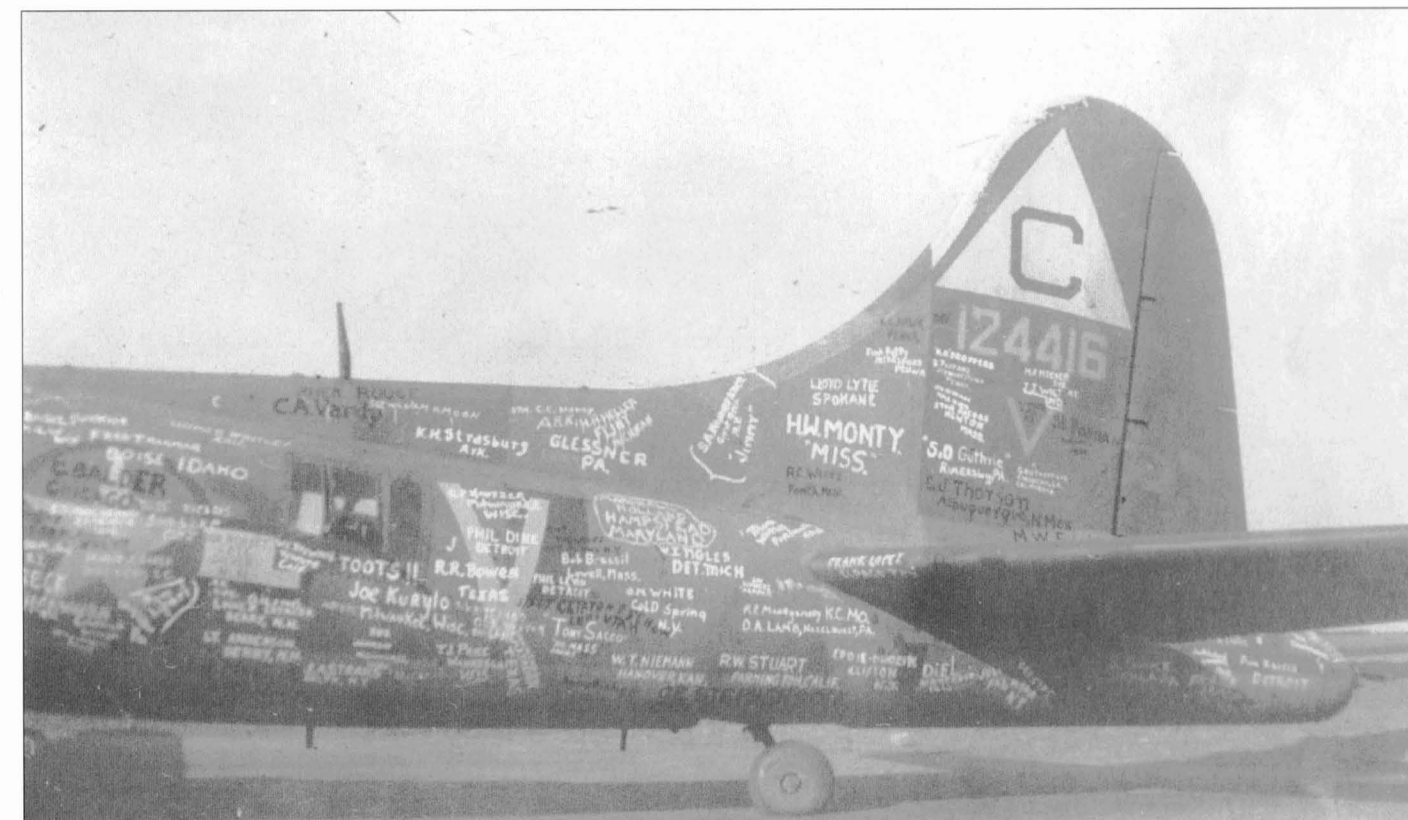

ABOVE: FUDDYHUCKLE, a late model B-17 of the 348th Sq., 99th Bomb Grp, Fifteenth Air Force, over the Adriatic.
 BELOW: An early model B-17F en route to assignment with Eighth Air Force. KNUCKLEHEAD was destroyed in a crash landing in England late in 1943.

It appears that nearly everyone in the Eighth Air Force scribbled their name on this B-17. She was named BLACK DIAMOND and belonged to the 359th Sq., 303rd Bomb Group, "Hells Angels."

ABOVE: LONESOME POLECAT, a 550th Sq., 385th Bomb Grp. B-17 of the Eighth Air Force came to a sad end in Lake Constance, Switzerland on 16 Mar 1944. One of the crew was killed in action. The aircraft was raised from the lake in 1953.

BELOW: GOONIE of the 98th Sq., 11th Bomb Grp. sports claims for seven Japanese fighters. The 11th Group served with both the Seventh and Thirteenth Air Forces.

ABOVE: A B-17F, Serial No. 41-24552, of the 65th Sq., 43rd Bomb Grp., Fifth Air Force. LISTEN HERE TOJO was lost with all her crew in New Guinea on 15 Sept. 1943.

BELOW: A pair of B-17s of the 99th Bomb Grp. over the Italian Alps in 1944.

CINCINNATI QUEEN fought with the 569th Sq., 390th Bomb Grp of the Eighth AF.

B-17F WHIZZER and her voluptuous lady served two tours of combat with the 99th and 301st Bomb Groups of the Eighth AF.
